town buyers and sizeable orders are being placed. All whites are in better demand than combination black and white and brown and white, but strapped leathers is pointed to as the first indication of better conditions in leather good tion of better conditions in leather goods trades. The great surplus of raw leather dumped last year on the market from New Zealand and Australia has been absorbed to a great extent and indications point to a more normal supply. Manufacturers, however, have shown no inclination to adjust themselves to higher prices for finer grades and are withholding commitments or substituting B quality leather. Fall buying by jobbers of handbaks, brief cases and other leather accessory articles is only about 25 per cent. completed.

Three leading stock houses notified yesterday the American Cloak and Suit Manufacturers. Association that they had agreed to enforce the association's plan to retain mill yardage tickets on goods sent to manufacturers. The three stock houses are Morris W. Haft & Bros., Inc., Jacobus Bros. and Jacob Sperber. It is believed that their action will do much to bring other leading whelesalers to agree to the plan.

Limited Gingham Buying.

No Change in Gray Goods.

Limited trading yesterday again characterized the local gray goods market, but prices ruled firm. Spot sales of 38½ inch, 64-69s were made at 7½ to 7¾ cents. For futures of that construction it was possible to obtain goods at ½ to ¼ cent lower. On 39 inch, 63-72s bids were received at 8½ to 8¾ cents and were generally accepted. Spot sales of 72-76s and 60-48s were made at 10 cents and 6¾ cents, respectively. Demand for sheetings was fair. Little price cutting was evident. Sales of 6.15 yard goods were made on a basis of 6½ to 6¼ cents. On 4 yard goods 3 cents was the prevailing quotation. Otherwise the market was without feature.

The wholesale clothiers are between the devil and the deep sea. Retillers on one hand are demanding further reductions on fall lines. On the ther mills are announcing almost daily advances of piece goods prices. How to meet the demand of both factors and make a margin of profit is the vital question confronting wholesalers. The position of the trade, however, is more inclined toward retailers' argument than that of mill agents. It is claimed that the latter are basing their advances on what should occur rather than on actualities. Convincing the consumer to pay higher prices is a problem that will require more arguments than the trade can offer.

Issue Pamphlet on Dyes.

A history of the dye reparation situation is contained in a pamphlet issued yesterday by the Textile Alliance, Inc. After reviewing events the opinion that a governmental department to continue the importation and distribution of reparation dyes is much to be preferred to any trade association as an effective agency is expressed. Private importers as such an agency, it is said, are out of the question. It is pointed out that that method of importation would result in limiting benefits of cheap reparation dyes to a few individuals or result in absorption by importers of profits in stead of accruals to intended beneficiaries.

White Goods Feature Women's Shoes—Leather Trade Sentiment Improves.

The call for white goods in women's shoe lines shows promise of maintaining its early seasonal start. Showrooms are receiving many calls from out of town buyers and sizeable orders are be-

Among smaller dress houses their constant effort to adjust themselves to and brown and white, but strapped models of patent leather in combination with buckskin or suede are popular numbers for afternoon and evening wear. The one inch heel is being featured extensively by larger houses for sport and dress wear shoes. The one and a half inch semi-fow heel, however, shows signs of being revived.

Leather Trades Feel Better.

The price increase in finer quality raw leathers is pointed to as the first indica-

Although gingham dress buyers are numerous in the market, little tangible business in future orders has been done. Two and three week commitments are the average placed by out of town merchants. Except in fine count goods, such as tissues, the trade is manifesting ne concern regarding curtailed mill production. Present supplies and a great quantity of imported goods are fufficient to meet immediate needs. Heavier ginghams, particularly checks, are inactive because demand is for gighter weight fabrics.
